

Location of Meteorological Station

Here is the current plan of the relevant area of the site showing roads, power cables and optical fibres. (Unfortunately I don't have it in colour so it is a little difficult to figure out which is which.) On this you can see the location given in the ICD, which has ended up in the middle of a road, and the location of the mast that has already been erected but is much too close to pad A071.

A new location is proposed. This should give a clear horizon in both east and west directions and it is conveniently close to the road. Since giving coordinates for this has obviously not worked in the past, I suggest that we simply take this drawing as the new requirement.

See plot over for a wider view.
